Sauralite™ \(CLICK HERE\) (New Zealand Azeztulite™)

Stone of the Central Sun and the Spiritual Earth
by Robert Simmons

In April of 2011, my wife Kathy and I traveled to New Zealand, on our way to some teaching engagements in Australia. As always, we were on the lookout for new stones. (I had been dreaming that we might even find a new Azeztulite.) We took great joy in experiencing the beautiful New Zealand countryside and attuning to the energies of that part of the Earth. We were amazed by the vitality that hums through the entire country, making everything there feel vibrantly alive. To us, it seemed like an intensely feminine land, not only lush and beautiful but fertile and powerful, upwelling with Life Force. Both of us, as well as the friend traveling with us, felt deep, vivid connections to the Earth Goddess while we were there.

One sunny day we were driving along the gorgeous coastline of the Coromandel Peninsula when Kathy suddenly called out, "Look, a mineral museum!" I pulled the car over and we drove two blocks to the building she had glimpsed out the window. It was a nineteenth-century structure which had once been a part of the gold mining industry. Inside, we were treated to a guided tour by the curator, who pointed out a rich array of New Zealand minerals and gold ores.

As we were about to leave, we noticed some unusual-looking white stones in the gift shop display case. Some of them were coated with tiny sparkling druzy crystals, while others displayed odd geometric plates and patterns. Some pieces had both. I felt an immediate attraction and asked the curator to show them to me. When I held the stones, I felt an intense surge of currents entering my third eye and filling my head with delicious pulsations. Then the currents expanded to my heart, and the pleasure turned to joy. As I stood there, I felt my entire body begin to wake up to a rapturous happiness. There was light inside my skull, and a delightful, felicitous welcome from the Being of the stone. I heard a voice within me say, "Yes, this is the new Azeztulite you are seeking."

I opened my eyes and began choosing pieces to purchase. In the end, we took almost everything. I was joyously intoxicated by the currents of these lovely little white stones. Finally, I spoke to the curator (who was looking at me a bit quizzically). "Can you get more of these, or is there more of this somewhere that I can buy?" He kindly offered to let me have the telephone number of Kevin, the man who had brought in the specimens. Synchronistically, he lived in a town over a hundred miles away—the same town where we were staying!

In a couple of days, we visited the mineral collector at his home. As we talked with him and his wife, getting to know each other, he finally said to me, "I believe we have met before..."

I protested, "I can't imagine how that could be possible. I've never been to New Zealand." He went to his collection cases for a moment and came back with a small white box that held five stones. I recognized them.

"I got these from you, in Tucson, about five years ago," he said. Then he went to a shelf and pulled out a copy of The Book of Stones.

I was more than a little flabbergasted by the synchronicity of the whole thing—the way we noticed the mineral museum, the gift shop and the little white stones, with their astonishing currents...and now the fact that I had already met the man who had found and collected them! Actually, it was the couple who had ferreted out these ecstasy-inducing treasures. Kevin wife Olga asserted that she had the superior nose for crystals. Either way, the two of them had a passion for stones that matched our own, and they had been collecting for fifty years.

The result was our returning home with as many specimens as our new friends would part with. I told them how much I liked the energies of these pieces, and how well they carried the joyful and vibrant qualities of New Zealand as we had experienced it. We explained that we would soon introduce them to our readers in the USA and around the world.

So now to the stones themselves.

Sauralite Azeztulites are crystals of intricate and varying forms. They include clusters of tiny druzy points, coral-like honeycombs of white crystal, geometric pseudomorphs and other unique patterns. (See photos on pages 36-43) Their variety reflects the vitality and originality of the Spiritual Earth as she expresses herself in New Zealand's beauty and the stones formed within that living crucible.

Energetically, it was immediately clear to me that these were one of the new varieties of Azeztulite that the Azez had predicted would be discovered in places all over the Earth. The currents carry the unmistakable Azeztulite vibrations. Yet they have a special quality that is distinctive to them. They are very happy stones, and they induce great happiness—sometimes to the level of ecstatic rapture—in anyone who opens to them. They also filled both my head and my cells with pure White Light. I had thought to name them New Zealand Azeztulite, after their location, but that name was not enough—it didn't evoke their unique nature. Finally Kathy suggested, "Why don't you ask the stones what their name is?"

It took only a few minutes to settle into deep meditation with two pieces of the new Azeztulites and my inner question about their name. Once again, my head was filled with delicious pulsations, moving into the heart, then spreading from the heart to fill the body with joy and Light. An unknown time passed. I felt bathed in Light, and thoughts emptied from my mind. Somewhere, the words "Great Central Sun" drifted through. Then I heard, "Saura Agni—Holy Light," and finally, "Sauralite." I felt that it was a beautiful feminine name, evoking the Nameless Light of the Great Central Sun, (Saura Agni means "fire of the Divine Sun") and the grace with which it is carried by these stones, for the joy of us, its human partners. Perhaps the most amazing part of my meditation was a vision I had of the Great Central Sun—to my surprise, it was not in the center of the cosmos but in the center of the Earth! It was the Light at the Heart of the Earth that linked most directly to the Sauralite Azeztulites. (My understanding now is that the Great Central Sun is ultimately a holographic presence of spiritual Light, within all of matter and in all places, but my vision revealed a powerful center of this Light within the Earth, and emanating through these beautiful stones.)

A stone that carries such delight may not need further description, but I will try anyway to say something more about its qualities.

Sauralite vibrates with astonishing intensity, combining the Nameless Light of the Great Central Sun with the living vitality of the Earth. New Zealand is one of the energetically clearest places on the planet, a place where the Light of Heaven and the love of Earth are vibrantly intermingled, and these stones are evidence of it. They carry the purpose of Azeztulite in its full realization—the living Light of the Divine married to the density of matter. In meditation, these stones literally draw the Light down through the crown while they open the base chakra for the upwelling of Earth energies. They allow one to become a living vessel for the spreading of Light, and for the dissolving of fear, contraction and pain. They are stones of physical enlightenment, making the body a place of ecstatic celebration of union with the Divine Earth. Sauralites are the most feminine Azeztulites, because the Earth's vitality is so alive in them. They can help us awaken to the joy of co-creative partnership with the Living Earth. In this state, we experience the disappearance of linear time and an ongoing unfolding of magical synchronistic manifestation in every moment. To work deeply with Sauralite Azeztulite is to enter a new way of being—a multi-dimensional awareness encompassing joy, forgiveness, communion, magic, ecstasy and unity with the Earth.

I feel that Sauralite has emerged at this time because our spiritual evolution has reached an important level. There are now numerous individuals who are aware of the Light in the cells and of their own subtle body makeup. Working with Sauralite can aid these people to fully awaken the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix to its own body consciousness, conjoined with our mental consciousness, our heart awareness and the Spiritual Earth. The heart is the Bridge of Light between the mental consciousness with which we are familiar and the bodily knowing of the New Human. Sauralite carries the quickening energies to stimulate this transformation. This is a joyful awakening—truly an ecstatic one—and the great Question posed to us by Sauralite—and by She who is Earth—is: "Will you give up your old life for a new, unknown joy?" How many of us are ready to answer "Yes!" to that invitation?

Sauralite resonates with Rosophia, Anandalite, Tibetan Tektite, Astaraline, Guardianite and all other Azeztulites. It is a powerful addition to the Synergy Twelve, and it harmonizes with Natrolite, Petalite, Phenacite, Anandalite and other stones of vibrational Ascension.

A small proportion of Sauralite Azeztulite contains a vein of rich purple Amethyst. These stones have their own unique qualities, in addition to what has been said above about Sauralite Azeztulite.

Robert Simmons writes: "When I held a piece of Sauralite with Amethyst, I felt a focus of currents at the crown chakra, and I saw an interior light of deep violet hue, pulsating in my inner vision. I felt intense currents in the crown chakra, which gradually flowed down through the whole body. There was a strong sense that I was experiencing an inner purification, operating simultaneously on the cellular and etheric levels. When the currents reached my feet, there was an upwelling of energy from the Earth into my body, and a rush of ecstatic joy. I felt that this was the Earth's joy rather than my own, and that I was feeling Her consciousness after the stone had energetically cleansed my body. It made me aware that we cleanse our inner temple not simply to honor the Divine, but to make it possible for the Divine to enter. And this Divine energy was clearly that of the Spiritual Earth rather than any cosmic entity from beyond. I am convinced that the work of Sauralite with Amethyst is to purify us so that we are able to attune to the frequency that allows the Earth's rapturous Self to enter and permeate us."

A Tide of Purple

In the ebb and flow of spiritual tides, there are times when certain stones, and even certain colors, have greater influence. The current times are suddenly saturated with purple and white, as Sauralite Azeztulite and Sauralite with Amethyst display. But there is more. Our recent buying trip revealed to us three new purple and white stones: Violet Flame Opal, Auralite 23 and Amethyst "Herkinners." Perhaps this is a time of spiritual purification, a cleansing necessary for the coming transformational awakenings. If so, these new stones are just what we need!

Violet Flame Opal™ (CLICK HERE)

Violet Flame Opal is the name given to a new variety of purple and white Opal, recently discovered in Mexico. It displays amazing and beautiful patterns of white with purple, ranging from pale lilac to Tanzanite blue.

Robert Simmons writes: "Violet Flame Opal has a softening energy. It soothes the emotional body and brings a state of inner tranquility to the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix. Its currents exert a gentle influence of healing to the stresses that can linger in the cells and organs, allowing the body's inner wisdom to prevail. This stone, like other Opals, operates first and foremost at the level of the emotional body, and its effect is to spiritualize the emotions, transmuting them to higher forms of feeling. It can aid, for example, in transforming jealousy to generosity, fear to courage, or anger to love.

"Violet Flame Opal stimulates spiritual awareness. It links one to the planes of angelic communication, aiding one in connecting with guardian angels and helping spirits. It helps one activate and focus awareness at the crown chakra, as well as the third eye, aiding in the initiation of visionary experience.

“Perhaps the most significant quality of Violet Flame Opal is its capacity to cleanse and purify the etheric body and the cellular energy matrix. Its vibrations bring deep harmony to these areas, and they dissolve any negative attachments or inner constrictions. They ‘smooth out’ the wave forms of the emotional, etheric and mental bodies, instilling a harmonious accord among them.

“In meditation, Violet Flame Opal has the capacity to call down the Violet Flame of spiritual fire which has been used for many decades by spiritual groups whose purpose was to bring about the birth of the new Spiritual Human. When one meditates with Violet Flame Opal for this purpose, one is advised to first allow inner attunement with the stones’ vibrational pattern, and then to call inwardly for the descent of the Violet Flame. This will often be felt as an intense tingling at the crown chakra, which gradually permeates the body. (Sauralite Azeztulite with Amethyst is the ideal stone to choose to increase the power of this process.) As one continues, it is good to inwardly ‘toss in’ whatever negative or dysfunctional patterns one wishes to burn away. These can be any sort of bad habits, fearful or angry thoughts, or unhelpful indulgences. When the Violet Flame is present, these can be brought to its purifying fire for successful transformation.

“Violet Flame Opal is enhanced in its effectiveness by the presence of Moldavite, Azeztulite, Amethyst, and especially Sauralite Azeztulite with Amethyst.

On our most recent buying trip, we discovered a small cache of tiny double-terminated Amethyst crystals from Madagascar. Their size, structure, transparency and energies reminded us of Herkimer Quartz “Diamonds.” Of course, these Amethyst crystals are not true Herkimers, because they are not from the Herkimer mining sites, but they do emanate currents of great intensity, just like their clear Quartz cousins from Herkimer, New York. These are composed of layers of Amethyst as well as highly transparent clear Quartz, so they fit the pattern of purple-and-white purification stones we are suddenly seeing come forward.

Robert Simmons writes: “I was amazed at the power emanating from these little crystals! When held to the third eye, their currents feel as strong as Phenacite’s. They stimulate both the third eye and crown chakras with an intensity much greater than I have felt from Herkimer Quartz ‘Diamonds.’ Those interested in awakening latent capacities of inner vision and psychic awareness are strongly advised to try working with one or more of these stones.

“When worn in jewelry, Amethyst ‘Herkimers’ penetrate the whole auric field with intense purifying and activating currents. They bring one into instant alignment with one’s higher awareness and they dispel all types of impurities from the auric field. They fill one’s field with spiritual Light and they remind the conscious self of one’s Divine Connection.

“Amethyst ‘Herkimers’ are amazing stones for dream work. When placed in the pillowcase or (especially) when taped to the third eye, they open the inner visioning capacities and allow one’s dream body access to high spiritual realms. They link one to one’s angel guides, who may appear in dreams and take one on a journey to the realms of Light. They can assist one in contacting spirits of loved ones who have passed over, including pets. This can be done in the dream state or in meditation.

“Amethyst ‘Herkimers’ can aid one recalling past lives, especially those in which one will benefit from learning their lessons. In bringing forward such visions, the purifying qualities of these stones can assist in dispelling attachments that might hold one back in current or future lives.

“Amethyst ‘Herkimers’ are stones of rapid spiritual evolution. As vision crystals, they aid one in seeing the way the optimal future can be; and as purification stones, they can help one stay ‘on the Path,’ so that one does indeed manifest one’s highest visions of what oneself and one’s world can become.

“Amethyst ‘Herkimers’ resonate powerfully with Sauralite Azeztulite, in its pure white or Amethyst-included forms. They also work in high synergy with Moldavite, Phenacite, Danburite, Nirvana Quartz, Petalite and all types of Azeztulite. Black Tourmaline, Guardianite, Black Andradite Garnet and Aegirine all can aid its function of purification.”

Auralite-23

Another powerful stone carrying the purple-and-white motif is the recently found Auralite-23.

Robert Simmons writes: “I was recently made aware of the discovery of some powerful and beautiful crystals from the Boreal forest of the Canadian Shield, far north of Lake Superior. The stones appear to be primarily composed of Amethyst, but they contain a wealth of other minerals as well. Their discoverer has named them Auralite.

“Auralite-23 crystals are about 1.2 billion years old, having been formed during the Meso-proterozoic age, at the time when multicellular creatures first emerged and began to flourish. It has been suggested that meteoric impacts during this time brought rare metallic ores to the surface, where they eventually dissolved and were incorporated into the structure of the growing Amethyst crystal now called Auralite. The elements identified by assays using x-ray diffraction include the following 35, present in various samples: Ag, Au, Al, Ba, Be, Bi, Ca, Cd, Co, Cr, Cu, Fe, Hg, K, La, Mg, Mn, Mo, Na, N, P, Pd, Pb, S, Sb, Sc, Sr, Th, Ti, Tl, U, V, W, Zn, Zr.

“The crystals themselves are structured layers of phantomed chevrons composed of three base three quartz species, Amethyst, Citrine and a rare form of metamict green quartz. The mineral compounds they contain reportedly include Titanite, Cacoxenite, Lepidocrosite, Ajoite, Hematite, Magnetite, Pyrite, Goethite, Pyrolusite, Gold, Silver, Platinum, Nickel, Copper, Iron, Limonite, Sphalerite, Covellite, Chalcopyrite, Gialite, Epidote, Bornite and Rutile. (The name Auralite-23 denotes that there are at least 17 of the 23 different minerals present in each specimen of Auralite.)

“When I sat down to meditate with two crystals of Auralite-23, I was surprised by the sheer volume of energy coming from them. They are much stronger than regular Amethyst! When a stone is held at the crown chakra, its pulsations move fully through the brain, activating both the crown and third eye. They engender sensations of peace and tranquility in the mind, and bring into one’s awareness a sense of being in the presence of the sacred. They remind one of the sacred nature of one’s own consciousness, and they bring a quality of inner focus that facilitates deep meditation. The mind is quieted and calmed, the emotional body is stilled and the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix is attuned to its Divine Blueprint. When one holds one of these stones at the crown chakra and a second one at the heart, a powerful circuit is created, helping to integrate heart awareness with one’s usual sense of self.

“Auralite-23 stimulates higher awareness and telepathic connection with one’s guides and guardian spirits. It offers a direct and immediate link to what is called the “Magic Presence” in esoteric literature—the Self beyond the everyday “I” that knows one’s life pattern and destiny, and which can help one live one’s life as an expression of one’s true spiritual purpose. In the poetic mystical tradition, this aspect of oneself—so different that it seems like a Divine being beyond oneself—was known as the Beloved of the Soul. Union with the Beloved was fervently sought by many spiritual aspirants. The connection facilitated by Auralite-23 is to that Higher Self, and although it does not guarantee full union without one’s own efforts, it does give offer an energetic link which greatly assists one’s journey to the Divine within.

“The link Auralite provides to higher realms can instigate a process of inner purification. Those willing to receive this stone’s blessings are inwardly “inspected” and cleansed of various inner knots of negative fixation. The felt sense of this can seem like a dissolving of one’s cares and worries—a release of patterns of anxiety, resentment, judgement, depression and defeat. As this dissolution occurs, one feels an upliftment of one’s spirit and an awakening to the potentialities for a new life. This rising of optimism and new hope is felt all the way into one’s cellular consciousness. The body itself is awed and made reverent by the clearing of the veils of illusion and the dawning of the presence of one’s true self, one’s Higher Self.

“Other effects of Auralite-23 can include an increase of one’s psychic sensitivity, enhanced insight into truth, disappearance of chronic problems with the body, a balanced awakening of kundalini, an awareness of the “eternal now”, spontaneous visions of future events, enhanced capacity for soul travel and lucid dreaming, and experiences with Angels.

“As a stone of the Divine Blueprint, Auralite-23 makes an excellent stone tool for spiritual healing. It can be applied to any area of the body in order to rebalance and heal through the re-installation of one's Pattern of Perfection. Auralite-23 remind the body, on a cellular level, of its proper vital function. As such, this is a stone of regeneration and rejuvenation. On the emotional level, the peace and widened awareness facilitated by Auralite-23 can clear many triggers and snags that cripple the emotional body. This stone also helps heal the soul through facilitating remembrance of past lives and stimulating the insight needed to release karmic patterns.

"Auralite-23 encourages one to recognize the blessings of one's life in relationship with the world. It encourages one to meet each moment of experience with the positive intention to bless the world with one's own love and self-giving. This Activity of Blessing is the essence of the New Consciousness, and is at the core of Auralite's nature. I hope those who acquire it will allow themselves to be awakened to this new and sacred way of being.

"Auralite-23 works most harmoniously with all forms of Azeztulite, as well as Rosophia. Its protective and purifying qualities are enhanced by Guardianite. Using Auralite-23 in conjunction with Mystic Merlinite will enhance one's potential to magically transform oneself and to make positive magic in the mundane world. Master Shamanite aids both in purification and in deepening the meditative experience initiated by Auralite-23."

Guardianite (previously introduced as Guardian Stone) has quickly become one of our most popular stones! Its energies, which make one feel both protected and in possession of one's full inner power, seem to be highly important in these transformational times. We are happy now to offer Guardianite in beads, polished shapes, wands, spheres and jewelry. We feel that these stones are among the most important we have discovered in the past twenty years, and we hope to see them spread widely.

Robert Simmons writes: "Guardianite is a new and powerful stone for the metaphysical community. It is found in Oregon, USA, and is a complex stone, composed of the minerals aegirine, feldspar, nepheline, analcime, riebeckite-arfvedsonite, biotite, olivine and apatite. It exhibits intricate dotted patterns of black on a gray-white background. I was initially drawn to it because of its Aegirine component, which I liked because of Aegirine's powerful energies of protection and purification. When I got the first samples, I discovered that the currents of the other minerals had combined with those of the Aegirine to produce a highly dynamic vibrational pattern that can permeate and strengthen one's entire field.

"The first sensation upon holding a piece of Guardianite is a deep and immediate grounding through the root chakra. This stone offers an almost instantaneous connection with the Earth and its upwelling Life Force currents—sometimes known as the Earth's chi, or prana. As these currents flow into one's field through the enhanced connection provided via Guardianite, they flow throughout the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix—an experience felt as a humming vibration of well-being. This sensation is so nourishing, strengthening that one tends not to want to put the stone down!

"My sense is that Guardianite can directly nourish the etheric and astral bodies, also enhancing their full integration with the physical self. The Aegirine and Riebeckite components give it a strong purifying and protective quality, while the Feldspar and Nepheline help one receive the nourishing Life Force energies of the Earth. The Biotite's influence is one of grounding and strengthening. The Apatite aids in cleansing the auric field, soothing the emotional body, enhancing mental clarity and strengthening the will. The Olivine promotes one's inner sense of well-being and instills a positive emotional attitude. Analcime's currents provide an uplifting link to the higher vibrational realms. With so many beneficial minerals combined in a single stone, it is as if a team of angels has come together to provide the ideal combination of protective, purifying, balancing, strengthening and uplifting energies to aid human beings through the challenges of the very transitions we are facing now!

"There is many uncertainties in today's world, and we are all challenged to face them and handle them with equanimity. When Guardianite's energies are in one's field, one feels supported and empowered, safe from all harm. One's center of Self is strong and stable, and one's powers of will and manifestation are enhanced. One knows that one can overcome any obstacle and that one will always be protected. This sense of safety comes from a very real boost to the power of one's energy fields.

"Guardianite can repair damage to one's subtle body and energy fields, allowing for the healing of many types of physical ailments brought about through energy-field damage. It can reseal a damaged aura, keeping one's spiritual body protected from all types of negative influences, from fear to radiation. It is highly recommended as an aid for spiritually addressing unusual illnesses for which no immediate physical cause can be discovered. Its beneficial influence on the auric field can help heal energy leaks that lead to anxiety and depression. It is an excellent stone for breaking through all sorts of 'downward spirals' which can adversely affect one's well being. It stimulates courage, confidence, optimism, creativity and willpower. It unleashes the dormant power of the fully awakened third chakra, allowing one to manifest one's highest aspirations and make one's dreams come true.

"Guardianite is a stone of deep connection to the Earth, which accounts for many of its nourishing qualities. It helps those of us who like to hang out in the high vibrational realms to bring those powerful and dynamic energies into expression in the physical world. It links us to a source of unlimited power through alignment with the Earth's chi, and it facilitates the connection through which we and the earth nourish one another in an unending love partnership. This full link with the Earth's chi is a key to the regeneration and rejuvenation of the body, as the ancient Chinese alchemists knew and practiced.

"Guardianite is an ideal partner for the high vibration stones which awaken the Light Body. It is a new member of the Ascension stones, providing strength and stability to the evolving and expanding Body of Light. It is an essential aid for those who work with any and all forms of Azeztulite, as well as Anandalite, Phenacite, Danburite, Herd-erite, Natrolite, Scolecite, Petalite, Brookite and Satya Mani Quartz. It has an astonishingly strong resonance with Sauralite, the newly discovered Azeztulite from New Zealand.

"The overall effect of Guardianite, from my perspective, is the activation of a strong, clear, pure and positive vibrational field, as well as a more awakened mental state and a confident and happy emotional tone. It just plain makes me feel good! I believe that this overall feeling is kindled by the presence in one's own field of the beneficial angelic forces that are combined in Guardianite. As we work with them, I sense that our alliance with this crew of Guardians will become stronger and more conscious, facilitating our spiritual growth and our effectiveness in living the fullness of our earthly destiny."

Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite is one of two highly energetic stones from the Satyaloka region of South India which we introduced in our previous catalog, and it has been highly praised by our readers. We now have polished shapes, hearts, spheres, beads and jewelry available, and we feel certain that the stone will now become even more popular, as more people experience its energies.

Robert Simmons writes: "For the past nineteen years, I have worked with the extraordinary stones called Azeztulite, and I have watch their popularity grow and their varieties increase. Both of these phenomena were predicted in the original channelings that presaged the discovery of Azeztulite. Quartz materials that carry the Azeztulite vibration have been found in North Carolina, Vermont, Colorado, India and New Zealand. Among the most powerful types of Azeztulite is Satyaloka Clear Azeztulite, found in South India in the same region where the Satya Loka monastery is located. Until recently, this stone was known simply as Satyaloka Azeztulite, but we now have two new members of the Azeztulite tribe—Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite and Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite. These are both found in the same digging area in South India, in the Satyaloka region.

"Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite powerfully stimulates the Third Eye chakra. Its currents move very deep into the brain, bringing intense and pleasurable sensations. It can also feel as though it is 'pulling' one's consciousness—and even one's etheric body—upwards! The power of Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite is the power of evolutionary change. It is programmed for the awakening of humanity and the Earth to a higher level of spiritual awareness, and its energy of awakening carries extraordinary force. Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulites carry the currents of enlightenment (literally: 'being filled with Light'). They have a strong enthusiasm—almost impatience—for one to wake up and assume one’s spiritual power. They seem to have a will of their own, focused on the rapid acceleration of our spiritual awakening. It is rather thrilling to be around them!

“Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite also stimulates our own will forces, helping one to align one’s intention with Divine will. It strengthens one’s capacity to focus all of one’s energies to serve that intention. In practice, this means one can utterly give oneself over to one’s spiritual purpose, and one can DO that which one wills to do, without doubt or inner turmoil. These stones provide clarity and enhance purpose, as well as awakening the mind to perceive and embrace one’s Divine destiny.

“Satyaloka Yellow is a powerful stone of Light Body awakening. It helps one attune to the pure Golden Ray of the highest realms of creative manifestation. These are the vibrational levels from which one can receive the power to transform the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix into an engine of regeneration and rejuvenation. It was originally predicted by the Azez that Azeztulite would dissolve the patterns of contraction and decay in the cells. The infusion of Golden Light into the cells from the spiritual realms stimulates the cells to emanate their own Golden Light, expanding their energy fields and potentially initiating what is called the Bigu state in Dzogzen Buddhism, the state of ‘living on Light.’

“Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite works well with all the Ascension and Synergy stones. It harmonizes with Astaraline for building the Body of Light. Guardian Stone protects the Light Body within this process. Its most natural allies are Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite and Satyaloka Clear Azeztulite. If one holds a Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite at the third eye and a Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite at the heart, the two stones can open and powerfully stimulate the channel between the heart and brain, leading to a state in which these energy centers function as an integrated whole. If one adds a Satyaloka Clear Azeztulite at the crown, one can experience the integrated heart-brain circuit linking with the “thousand petaled lotus” of the awakened crown chakra, and further connection to the etheric chakras and the realms of Spirit beyond.”

When we introduced Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite in our last issue, it was immediately highly popular. Since then, people have been contacting us to share their stories of spiritual opening with these beautiful and powerful stones. We have recently received a shipment from our stone cutters, so we can now offer beads, polished shapes, jewelry, wands and spheres. We’re eager to see what occurs as more people experience the heart-awakening currents of these powerful stones.

Robert Simmons writes: “Deeper in the same mining site where Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite was found, our prospector friend unearthed the rich russet-colored Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite. The reason for the name Satyaloka Rose has as much to do with the stones’ resonance with the heart as it does their peach to salmon-pink color.

“When I began meditating with a piece of Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite, I tried touching it to the third eye chakra, as I had with the yellow one. A bit surprisingly, I did not feel much there. The two stones were from the same site, but their very different colors apparently corresponded to a very different vibrational pattern. After a few minutes, I moved the stone to the heart, where it ‘wanted’ to go.

“Within a few seconds, I could feel soft yet powerful currents moving into my heart, and almost immediately, they rose upward, filling my entire head with sweet, strong currents which rose upwards from the heart. The emotional tone was loving and peaceful, and at the same time the currents were so strong that my head felt ‘full,’ and it seemed to be expanding. Yet these were not the typical currents I associated with the third eye and crown. They were heart energies in my head! Then I inwardly saw a salmon-colored rose floating in front of me.

“This is when the name ‘Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite’ came into my mind. The heart is often symbolized by the rose, and both are deeply associated with love. That is what I was being shown. The currents of this new stone were profoundly loving, and at the same time there was an energy of opening about them. The filled my head with the heart’s feeling, and its expansiveness as well.

“I then tried holding both stones at once. I placed the yellow one at the third eye and the pink one over my heart. Using the two together, I felt a great circulation of currents between the heart and the third eye and crown chakras. This time the flow was in both directions. I was aware of feeling greatly expanded, while at the same time my heart and my head were energetically ‘feeding’ each other.

“Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite carries the currents of Heart Ascension. Like all the Satyaloka Azeztulites, its vibrations are intense and powerful. These stones not only stimulate the heart chakra, they also encourage the heart to ‘move’ upward into the head. They awaken the Divine ‘I’ of the heart and lift it to its rightful throne in the center of the brain. When this occurs, one thinks, speaks and acts out of the heart’s wisdom. The mind and brain then take their places as the servants of the heart. When this transformation is fully realized, one can speak and act only in truth, because the heart knows only truth. This shift affects the body as well, dissolving all falsehood and self-negation in the mind of the cells. The cells vibrate with the heart’s love and truth aligning themselves with the Light and Love emanated by the Great Central Sun and the Ascended Heart. Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite fully activates the heart’s spiritual Light.

“To bring forth the fullness of this profound transformation, combining Satyaloka Rose Azeztulite with Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite is advised. Using the Rose Azeztulite at the heart and the Yellow Azeztulite at the third eye, the circuit of Light and Heart Ascension can be created and energized. To extend the activation to the crown, place a piece of Satyaloka Clear Azeztulite there. This stone also resonates with all of the Ascension and Synergy Stones. Astaraline assists it in the process of Light Body activation.

“I am very excited about the powerful potentials of these two new Satyaloka Azeztulites. They are among the strongest stone energies I have ever experienced, and the way they circulate their currents indicates to me that they are programmed for vibrational Ascension. This Ascension will not take us away from the world—it will move to transform both ourselves and the world, into Beings of Light on a Planet of Light.”

We have recently acquired our first-ever collection of raw pieces of Blue Chalcedony. We have always loved these stones, but until now they were only available in tumbled form. When we saw these pieces, with their fascinating undulating forms (sometimes with sparkling druzi coatings), and deep color, we bought the whole collection!

Robert Simmons writes: “When there is a need for softness in the auric field, at times when stress-mount and one’s center begins to wobble, Blue Chalcedony can restore calm and balance. Because it is a strong representative of the Blue Ray, associated with the throat and third-eye chakras, Blue Chalcedony affects the mind on many levels. It stimulates telepathy and all types of communications with the invisible realms. It helps one speak things which are below one’s normal conscious awareness and is thus a good stone for those in therapy and an excellent tool for those engaged in counseling others. Because it connects to the subconscious, Blue Chalcedony can also assist in the remembrance of past lives, and its orientation towards inner healing means that the memories recovered with Blue Chalcedony will be those most relevant to what is needed for one’s progress and growth.

Golden Citrine Lasers

Our Fall buying trip yield a rare batch of Golden Citrine Laser Wands from Madagascar. These long, slender crystals of rare natural Golden Citrine emanate concentrated currents from their tips. They are among the most beautiful and powerful Citrines we have encountered.

Robert Simmons writes: “The new Golden Citrine Laser Wands from Madagascar emit rich, deep currents of the Golden Ray. They strengthen the Solar Plexus chakra, aiding in finding and wielding one's personal power. They can assist in creative manifestation through the will, if one works with them meditatively for this purpose. They can facilitate the attainment of mental clarity and they encourage greater self-confidence.

"Golden Citrine Laser Wands can be used for manifesting prosperity and abundance. Their attunement to the Golden Ray helps in the manifestation of the True Gold on all levels, from the material to the spiritual. For working to achieve financial prosperity, I recommend placing one's checkbook or ban statement on one's home altar, with one of these crystals on top of it. Before doing do, hold the stone at the solar plexus, touching the financial papers to the stone and envisioning an aura of golden light around both oneself and the objects. Imagine the emotional quality one would associate with living in abundance and include it in the visualization. Then place the stones and papers on the altar. One can add a candle and a note stating one's intention to attract prosperity into one's life. Express true gratitude for the abundance one has. The Golden Citrine Laser Wand will help to focus the intensity of one's inner work in this area, and will fill the entire activity with an aura of golden spiritual Light. Any other type of creative manifestation work can be done with these stones and a similar meditative practice, focusing on the desired creative goal.

"One can enhance the power of these crystal by combining them with North Carolina Golden Azeztulite, Satyaloka Yellow Azeztulite, Himalaya Gold Azeztulite, Phenacite, Libyan Gold Tektite and/or Moldavite."

Green Chlorite Phantoms

Another great find from our buying trip was a small group of Green Chlorite Phantom crystals from Madagascar. These were from an old collection, and we were lucky to find them. We had not seen any of these for the past fifteen years.

Robert Simmons writes: "Green Chlorite Phantoms are some of the most effective crystals for helping one attune to Nature spirits, devas and the beings of the fairy realm. These crystals allow one to feel and envision the spiritual domains nearest to the physical Earth, in which the beings that enliven the plant and animal kingdoms dwell.

"Green Chlorite Phantoms can be helpful in shamanic work. Their link with the devic realm can help those who wish to learn shape shifting and shamanic flight. This linkage can also aid one in communicating with animal spirits and a great variety of guides in the shamanic worlds.

"Those wishing to participate in Earth-healing can gain by working with Green Chlorite Phantom. These stones facilitate one's making a conscious connection with the living Earth, and in feeling what the Earth feels. Through meditative work in which one holds the intention of Earth-healing, one may have visionary experiences that both reveal the areas where healing is needed and inspire one to the appropriate inner and outer gestures.

"Green Chlorite Phantoms are happy stones, filled with the joy of the living world. They aid those who wish to become closer to the Earth to find the way of inner resonance which will guide them there.

"These crystals will work well in combination with Seriphos Green Quartz, Seraphinite, Rosophia and Sauralite Azeztulite."

Pink Datolite \(CLICK HERE\)

Our Fall buying trip yield one small group of specimens we had never seen before—Pink Datolite crystals from Mexico. Previously all of our Datolites had been green or greenish gray, [see pictures on the Datolite page of this catalog] and had originated in Russia. Also the new Pink Datolite specimens have attached cubes of gold-white Calcite, blending their energies in unique ways. They feel quite wonderful, and we're sure that those who are called to them will be rewarded by their experience of these rare stones.

Robert Simmons writes of Datolite: "Datolites are strong crystals for the third-eye, crown and etheric chakras. They open one's subtle vision, allowing one to see auras, as well as beings in the astral, causal and subtle domains. Nature spirits, angels, guides, non-physical teachers, healers and helpers all become visible and available for communication. The fast-pulsing energies of Datolite increase the vibration of one's energy field so one can consciously experience one's own spiritual body, using it to explore the many higher dimensions surrounding us.

"These stones can retrieve lost memories of childhood, past lives, and even the Akashic record of humanity's ancient history. They can enhance the accuracy of one's memory and sharpen all mental abilities. They especially aid in developing mathematical intelligence but also improve linguistic learning, memorization, analysis of systems, abstract geometries and other applications of the thinking mind. Datolites are excellent stones for one's work desk or meditation altar. They will work differently in each case, but the benefits are great.

"Yellow-green Datolite in particular can be used to enhance the heart and solar-plexus chakras and their links with the etheric chakras. In order to truly evolve, one must develop the high heart and the high will, the exalted aspects of the fourth and third chakras. Yellow-green Datolite assists in this process, because its vibrational pattern exhibits this exact dynamic in finished form. Being near this type of Datolite, one can develop an energy resonance with it that moves one's own pattern into this ideal spectrum.

"Datolite works very well with high-vibration stones like Phenacite, Natrolite, Scolecite, Danburite and Azeztulite. All of these will strengthen Datolite's awakening of one's awareness of beings in the higher vibrational realms. For enhancing the mental/intellectual properties, Datolite can be combined with Heliodor, Lapis and Cinnabar Quartz. Datolite also harmonizes with all the Calcites, which will help one in attuning consciously to the emotional body. Fluorite, Pyrite and Axinite assist in grounding Datolite's energies and in keeping one free of illusion and confusion while one's consciousness is immersed in other dimensions."

Continuing on with his impressions of the new Pink Datolites, Robert writes: "The Pink Datolites from Mexico are just as powerful for stimulating interdimensional awareness as are the Russian varieties, and they have added capacities. They are ideal for establishing a center of self-awareness in the heart, and for opening that heart-centered self to an awakened state of communion with numerous levels of the higher realms. They link the heart, third eye and crown chakras, stimulating a compassionate, stable 'seat of consciousness' via which one may travel through multiple universes and enter the realms thought of as 'heavenly.' They can facilitate an inner linking with all of the realms of spiritual Light, and they attune the emotional body to a state of ecstatic bliss.

"The golden-white Calcites attached to the Pink Datolites provide their own beneficial currents. They initiate an energetic current linking on to the Gold-White Ray, which is the Light of the Great Central Sun. Thus, these particular specimens work especially well with Azeztulite in regard to one's cellular embodiment of the Pure Light of the Central Sun. This is of tremendous significance, because this cellular embodiment is what initiates the formation of the Body of Light.

"Because of their special link to the heart and their ability to affect the emotional body as well as the higher chakras, I enthusiastically recommend that people try using these Pink Datolites in conjunction with the Sauralite Azeztulites from New Zealand. There is a strong potential, under the influence of these stones combined with one another, to enter the highest states of Samadhi, or mystical ecstatic rapture."

Angel Wing Anhydrite

It has been years since we were able to get a good batch of these beautiful sky-blue clusters! Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite offers some of the sweetest and most emotionally soothing currents of any stone we know, and we are thrilled to have these stones again. The shapes of the clusters remind one of Angel Wings, which is where these stones got their name; and their energies are closely connected to the angelic realm.

Robert Simmons writes: “Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite is one of the most powerful ‘soft’ energy stones in the mineral kingdom. It is ideal for clearing blocks, erasing implants, soothing all sorts of disharmony and providing a conduit of strength through which one can reconnect with Source. In meditation, this stone can provide the experience of ‘flight.’ For those who are ‘angels in human form’—those who have taken on a human incarnation in order to assist in the planetary transformation of consciousness—Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite can facilitate a deep remembrance of one’s true identity.

“Angel Wing Blue Anhydrites are highly attuned to the angelic realm, and meditation with these stones can help one communicate with one’s guardian angels and angelic teachers. They work to soothe the emotional body and to cleanse the auric field. One can use Angel Wing Anhydrite to call in angelic protection, and to solicit angelic intervention in stressful situations. Even such concerns as finding lost objects and communication with deceased loved ones can be facilitated by these stones.

“Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite harmonizes with Azeztulite, Petalite, Danburite, Diamond and all types of Azeztulite. All of these stones have connections with the Angelic realm. In addition, combining Seraphinite with Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite can help one ‘call down’ the angelic energies for healing purposes. Combining Angel Wing Blue Anhydrite with or Oregon Opal can aid in healing and rebuilding a wounded emotional body. Adding Alexandrite can increase one’s ability to see and remove limiting implants and ‘crystallized’ emotional blocks.”

One of the most powerful high-vibration stones for the third eye, crown chakra and etheric chakras above the head is the humble-looking little charcoal-colored crystals called Brookite. These tiny squarish stones pack a lot of energetic power, which can aid one in opening one’s upper chakras and awakening to higher realms. We had been unable to buy Brookite for several years, and were pleased during our recent buying trip to find a miner who had some we could purchase.

Robert Simmons writes: “Brookite is one of the primary power stones for expansion of awareness beyond the physical body. It is a powerful activator of the sixth and seventh chakras and the etheric chakras above the head. It can align all the upper chakras with the rest of one’s energy body, allowing one to explore the subtle realms with a highly sensitive and stable awareness.

“When used at the third eye in meditation, Brookite can produce a deep, pulsating, rhythmic vibration that moves from the front of the forehead into the interior of the head and up through the crown. One may feel the physical eyes cross and turn toward the third eye (a desired goal of certain types of meditation), creating a triangular flow of energy which seems to move up and out of the crown chakra. Allowing the process to continue, one may expand into consciousness of the various levels of the etheric, astral and causal bodies. Often one will feel the benevolent presence of spirit guides and angels encouraging and assisting this process of expansion. Removing the stones from the third eye, one may feel a slow ‘gathering in’ of one’s energies as they return to the normal state. Yet such normalcy still retains the connection which has been established with the higher domains.

“Brookite enables one to reach an expanded state in which one can communicate and commune with beings on the higher vibrational levels. It teaches one the nature of the higher levels of consciousness vibration. It can help one gain the ‘cosmic perspective’ that allows one to see even unpleasant situations as beneficial to growth. It is inspirational and energizing, assisting one in overcoming old patterns and moving ahead to greater inner development.

“Brookite will combine well with other high-vibration stones such as Phenacite, Azeztulite, Danburite, Herderite, Seraphinite, Natrolite, Scolecite, Tibetan Tektite, Satyaloka Quartz, Petalite, Tanzanite, Elestial Calcite and Moldavite. If one feels the need to ground Brookite’s energy more deeply in the body, Zincite or Black Tourmaline are recommended. Brookite can be mounted harmoniously in jewelry with any of the stones mentioned above, plus Sugilite or Charoite when an element of psychic protection is desired. For those who feel over-stimulated by Brookite’s high vibrations, combining it with high-lithium stones such as Lilac Lepidolite and Amblygonite can calm the individual without one losing access to the higher realms.”

We were lucky to increase our stock of fine Blue Kyanite crystals on our recent buying expedition. Though we have carried Blue Kyanite for over twenty years, we have never had such a good selection of clean, deep blue crystals as we do now.

Robert Simmons writes: Blue Kyanites have a high vibration and create very rapid transfers of energy. They open the psychic channels and activate the mind centers, accentuating one’s mental capacities and enhancing one’s ability to ‘download’ information from higher sources. They can make telepathic communication between individuals easier, especially if both parties are using them. If one chooses to sleep with Blue Kyanite, the process of lucid dreaming will be greatly stimulated.

“Blue Kyanite can link the physical, astral and causal bodies, catalyzing full consciousness in waking, dreaming and dreamless sleep. One must work at this, but it is well worth it when the goal is achieved. These stones are powerful catalyzers of kundalini energies, stimulating the acceleration of one’s spiritual evolution. They stimulate the opening of all the chakras and the awakening of latent inner capacities. Blue Kyanite can open up one’s ability to perceive at a distance, through both space and time. It increases instances of prophetic vision and it can help one learn to ‘see’ multidimensionally through the third eye.

“Blue Kyanites can be combined with Green Kyanite to bring their energies into resonance with the heart center. Using both stones together, one can channel the high-frequency vibrations into self-healing and other beneficial pursuits. Green Kyanite can also keep Blue Kyanite’s psychic openings centered in the heart, protecting the self from using enhanced psychic abilities as an excuse for an ‘ego trip.’ Blue Kyanite harmonizes with all other Kyanite, as well as Moldavite, Phenacite and Azeztulite. Combining Blue Kyanite with the newly discovered Orange Kyanites facilitates the full embodiment of the visionary capacities awakened by Blue Kyanite, and their fusion with one’s body consciousness—the entire Liquid Crystal Body Matrix.”

Orange Kyanite (CLICK HERE)

Last year, those of us who follow developments in the world of minerals were surprised by the discovery in Africa of Orange Kyanite. Until that time, only Blue, Black and Green Kyanites were known to us. The new Orange Kyanites have turned out to be a delightful addition to our stone selection.

“Robert Simmons writes: “The constant call in these times seems to be the call of the body, and the call TO the body. We are urged by the spiritual realms and by the Stone Beings to bring the energies of what we call the higher worlds into manifestation here, through ourselves, our physical forms and our very cells. Orange Kyanite has emerged at this fortunate time to aid in that transformation. These stones are capable of facilitating the transformation of high etheric energies into the liquid crystal of our DNA, aiding us in producing physical evolutionary changes within a single lifetime. This can be something as simple as healing or as earth-shaking as Light Body awakening. The catalytic potential of these stones is awesome. They are among the most powerful aids for manifestation, allowing one to bring one’s inner visions into outer form. This can be true within one’s body as well as in one’s day-to-day life.

“There are only a few stones that work well for activating the awesome power of the second chakra, seat of our sexual and creative energies. Orange Kyanite is one of those stones. It stimulates the second chakra, and can clear it of negative energies and/or attachments. This can be of great help if one is working to clear old wounds and blockages on that area, from this life or from past lives. Meditating with one of these stones can help one attune to the incidents in which one’s creative power was interfered with through sexual manipulation or wounding. Seeing the dysfunctional pattern, one can more readily dissolve and release it. When one's physical, emotional, astral and etheric bodies are cleared at the second chakra, one's capacity to create can truly blossom. This clearing can also open one sexually in a healthy way, and allows one to explore and enjoy one's sexuality in joyful and creative ways.

"Orange Kyanite also stimulates the first and third chakras, bringing an enhancement of life force and a strengthening of one's ability to use the will creatively. Meditation is fundamentally the training of attention. When you can hold your attention on something without being derailed by outer distractions or inner wandering, the secrets of whatever one is contemplating will eventually reveal themselves within you. The empowerment and unification of the first three chakras is essential to this process, and the ability to use one's will to hold and expand one's attention comes out of that empowerment. This is potentially one of Orange Kyanite's greatest gifts, because it allows us to enter into co-creation with the Soul of the World. She is always ready to meet us in the creative dance, but we are not equipped to join Her until our attention is under our own command.

"Orange Kyanite works well in combination with all three of Kyanite's their colors. Black Kyanite assists in making the connection with the first chakra and enhancing Life force. Blue Kyanite aids in opening the mind centers to coordinate with the awakened body consciousness. Green Kyanite works through the heart to unify the upper and lower chakras which are stimulated by the other three Kyanites. Orange Kyanite also works well for creative manifestation when it is combined with African Yellow/Green Sapphires."

It has been many years since we have been able to get these remarkable crystals from Mexico! They have always been highly popular when we had them, and have usually sold out quickly. This time we have an especially nice batch of Elestial Lightkeeper crystals, in a variety of sizes. They look and feel like a cross between regular Elestial crystals and Herkimer Diamonds.

Robert Simmons writes: "Elestial Quartz crystals are like switchboards linking multiple dimensions, times and levels of consciousness to one another. These crystals constantly emanate vibrations that remind us and reconnect us to the inner worlds of Spirit. They easily attune to the angelic domain. Through this connection, one may receive a 'download' of cosmic love, which can infuse every cell in the body with joy and well-being. These Elestial Lightkeepers carry the highest Elestial vibration. Herkimer Quartz 'Diamonds' are inter-dimensional stones as well. They stimulate dream life and open the doors to higher realms. They can be thought of as 'solidified spiritual Light.' These properties are also among those embodied in Elestial Lightkeepers.

"Elestial Lightkeepers are some of the most directly attuned stones for linking with the angelic domain. In meditation, they can expand one's sphere of awareness into a kind of 'cloud of Light,' capable of ascending through the celestial spheres of consciousness. As one does so, one experiences increasing intensities of Light, until one becomes so Light-infused that one is unable to distinguish the source of the Light from the center of oneself. The Elestial Lightkeeper crystals can aid one in entering an maintaining this state of awareness. As one abides here for some time, one may begin to sense variations in the Light, and the approach of Presences. These Presences are angelic beings, who may link with one and show one images which will illustrate what the being wishes to communicate. These images may seem dreamlike, but one will be fully awake. They may include living visions of loved ones who have died, and with whom one can interact. They may be visions of the angelic ones themselves, who take forms in order to allow us to relate to them. Or one's visions may be of teachings or ideas which the angelic guides wish to impart. Sometimes they are inspirations of new creations which one can manifest on Earth. Among stones, the Elestial Lightkeepers are among the best for consciously traveling to the high angelic worlds.

"In spiritual self healing, Elestial Lightkeepers are ideal for bringing spiritual Light into the meridian system. Practitioners of massage or other healing modalities are encouraged to have the client hold one of these crystals in each hand during a session. This will bring Light in through the hands, which will spread throughout the entire system. Often this energy can clear blocked meridians and cleanse the chakras. Additional Elestial Lightkeeper crystals can be placed on the body at the sites of blockages or along the chakra column to enhance the clearing and Light-infusing effects.

"Sleeping with Elestial Lightkeeper crystals can enhance dream life and can initiate experiences of lucid dreaming. It aids the self in awakening within the dream without leaving it. From this point, one can make choices within the dream scenario, allowing for all types of amazing experiences. These are excellent stones for exploring astral travel and for bringing about our-of-body experiences.

"Placing an Elestial Lightkeeper crystal near each eye while looking at another person with diffuse vision (eyes slightly out of focus) can facilitate one's capacity to 'scan' the body and energy field of another person for diagnosis of physical or energetic imbalances.

"Elestial Lightkeepers work harmoniously with Herkimer Quartz 'Diamonds' as well as regular Elestial Quartz. Their vision-enhancing capacities are multiplied when they are combined with Phenacite. The infusion of Light which they facilitate can be powerfully magnified by combining them with all types of Azeztulite. Combining Sauralite Azeztulite with Elestial Lightkeepers can help initiate the experience of ecstatic union with the Light."

Another rarity from our buying trip is Axinite. It has been one of the most difficult stones to acquire of all those described in The Book of Stones. We felt fortunate to get a small batch top quality Axinites at a reasonable price.

Robert Simmons writes: "Axinite emanates a very wholesome and helpful energy. It is clarifying to one's consciousness, harmonizing to one's emotions, expansive to one's awareness and balancing to one's physical energies. It is strongly grounding, and it helps one bring Earth energies up through one's feet and into one's whole body. It can be a powerful aid to one's endurance, and it is recommended for anyone who works long hours.

"Axinite acts to allow the waking mind access to the subconscious and superconscious realms. It also helps one hold in memory the experiences of the spiritual planes. Axinite can be used to assist one in gaining conscious access to the morphic fields of knowledge accumulated by each species throughout time and space. Axinite can function as a 'savant stone,' facilitating direct mental access to knowledge, independent of any outside source.

"Axinite harmonizes with Zincite, Moldavite, Herderite, Phenacite, Azeztulite, Beryllonite, Tremolite and Danburite. Axinite with Alexandrite can facilitate past-life recall."

Lemurian Seed Crystals

On our buying trip we added a nice batch of small Lemurian Seed Crystals to our inventory. These are among the most beloved of all Quartz crystals, and are constantly in demand.

Robert Simmons writes in the Pocket Book of Stones: "Lemurian seed crystals are a special variety of clear Quartz, a silicon dioxide mineral with a hexagonal crystal system and a hardness of 7. They come from the Diamantina region of Brazil, and are identified by the ladder-like grooves crossing the bodies of the crystals. On some crystals, there is a reddish pink tinge caused by a coating of iron oxide.

“Lemurian Seeds can help one attain ‘Lemurian awareness’—the balancing, nurturing, loving, spiritual and sensuous consciousness that has been long lost by much of humanity. The response to these crystals is often so emotional and so laden with love that one feels them as a balm to the soul. Lemurian Seeds can benefit just about everyone. Most people need the heart opening and emotional/spiritual healing they offer. Healers can use these crystals to bring such experiences to their clients.

“Lemurian Seed Crystals emanate a decidedly yin, or feminine, energy. They harmonize wonderfully with stones such as Gem Silica, Larimar, Celestite, Azeztulite, Satyaloka Quartz, Petalite, Morganite, Rose Quartz and Kunzite. Moldavite can catalyze their activation to the highest spiritual level. They are energized by Herkimer Diamonds, Siberian Blue Quartz and Merkabite Calcite.”

Black Andradite Garnet

In our previous catalog, Black Andradite Garnets were among our most popular items. We have brought them back for this issue, and have added a number of new polished pieces. These are ideal for body layouts, meditation and jewelry.

Robert Simmons writes: “Black Andradite Garnet is a powerful grounding stone, which can also be used to kindle the magic and evoke the mysteries of the Earth. It can help one attune to elemental forces and engage their aid. One can meditate with this stone to penetrate the depths of the collective unconscious and to read the morphogenic fields of knowledge held not only by humanity but also by other intelligent species of this planet. It is a stone which connects with the nourishing darkness, and one can use it to enlist the aid of one’s own secret wellsprings of power. It is ideal for tapping into one’s life force, for arousing the creative fires of sexuality, and for the empowerment and focus of the will. It aids one in establishing the dynamic grounding which is needed for those of high intention to actualize their visions.

“The fiery energies of Zincite can enhance Black Andradite Garnet. For prosperity, Tsavorite and African Green Garnet aid the work. For creativity and sexuality, Spessartine Garnet, Carnelian and Zincite are helpful. For purification, add Black Tourmaline, Jet or Black Obsidian.”

Azurite Crystals \(CLICK HERE\)

Our Fall buying trip yielded some amazing glossy, deep blue Azurite crystals. These were larger than any we had ever been able to buy before, and we are excited to offer them. May people have asked if they could purchase the Azurite crystal on the cover of The Book of Stones, and these are the first comparable specimens we have had available. Although all forms of Azurite have wonderful energies, Azurite crystals are believed to embody the virtues of Azurite in their most concentrated form.

“Robert Simmons writes: “No stone is a purer embodiment of the Blue Ray than Azurite. Its rich dark-blue color carries the exact frequency of the third-eye chakra and is a natural tool for the activation of that energy center. Azurite is a stone of inner vision and can be used for the enhancement of dreams as well as the development of psychic powers. It can stimulate intellect as well as intuition, and it is a helpful aid for those who are studying new or challenging subjects. It is recommended that anyone who is a student, including being a ‘student of life,’ carry or wear an Azurite to aid them in the assimilation and retention of new information and ideas. Azurite can also facilitate the agility of mind required to make conceptual leaps and reach new insights.

Azurite can be used to strengthen the astral and etheric bodies, making one less vulnerable to psychic attack or attachments. It can be used to seal ‘holes’ in the aura, thus alleviating tendencies to succumb to fatigue. It stimulates all the mind centers, nourishing within the self a keen interest in all aspects of one’s life and function in society. It is an excellent antidote to boredom, since it opens one’s inner eye to a wide array of connections and possibilities. Those engaged in academic pursuits may find that Azurite makes it easier to retain clarity and focus while studying. It can certainly assist one in making new connections between seemingly unrelated fields of knowledge. It is a stone of synthesis, whereby the discovery of new commonalities and links between different ideas leads to higher levels of understanding of life and the world.

“Azurite blends well energetically with Malachite, Cuprite, Covellite, Chrysocolla and Turquoise. All of these copper-based minerals complement and magnify the effects of Azurite, without modifying them. Rainbow Moonstone can add emotional tranquility to Azurite’s activation of the mind. Sunstone, Red Aventurine and Carnelian lend strength, courage and determination to persevere to the insights facilitated by Azurite. Azeztulite, Phenacite, Brookite, Natrolite, Scolecite and Moldavite can ‘spiritualize’ Azurite’s energies. However it is used, Azurite is a stone which opens the door to inner discovery.”

One of the prizes of our Fall buying trip was a bag of high-quality tumble-polished Azurite/Mala-chite stones. These are certainly some of the best we have ever had, and they are both beautiful and powerful. Azurite/Malachites combine the properties of Azurite [see article above] with Malachite, as described below.

Robert Simmons writes: “Malachite is one of the most important stones for protection from negative energies. It permeates the auric field with positive vibrations and strengthens the natural energetic ‘shell’ which can screen out hostile forces, and it activates the psychic ‘radar’ via which one ‘feels’ the presence of danger. It even accentuates the sort of protection in which synchronicities seem to conspire to keep one safe. Malachite emanates the healthiest energy pattern for the heart. It assists one in maintaining emotional balance, and it offers an enhanced ability to see and avoid one’s own emotional pitfalls. The solar-plexus chakra is stimulated by Malachite, enhancing one’s willpower. In the presence of Malachite, it is easier to refuse temptations. Malachite instills confidence and responsibility and is useful in making spiritual progress through right action.

“When Azurite and Malachite are combined in a single stone, there is a profound synergy of their energies. The third eye, heart and solar plexus chakras are drawn into a natural and coordinated unity. One’s psychic capacities to see with clarity of insight and to feel with gut instinct are linked and strengthened. The enhancement of one’s ability to mentally assimilate new information is coupled with a strong emotional intuition. With Azurite and Malachite, the age-old split between mind and heart is healed. The auric field is strengthened and a strong energy of spiritual protection permeates it.”

“One of the best stones to combine with Azurite/Malachite is Cuprite, which harmonizes easily with it and brings in an infusion of prana through the root chakra. All forms of Azeztulite work to elevate and spiritualize the helpful qualities of Azurite/Malachite.”

Another newly found stone from our buying trip is Zoisite with Ruby (aka Ruby Zoisite). Our new stock comes from a recent discovery in Africa.

Robert Simmons writes: “Zoisite with Ruby is one of those truly fortunate natural mineral combinations. Green Zoisite emanates an energy of growth and fertility in all aspects of life. It can support the reproductive process on all levels, from conception to birth, as well as optimal growth and development through childhood. It provides energy for the rebirth of oneself into the soul, fostering inner development and increased understanding of oneself and the world. It is an excellent stone for those who have recently ‘awakened’ to their spirituality, because it strengthens the neural and energetic connections between the brain and the heart. This allows for the mind to ‘hear’ the heart’s urgings and to understand them sufficiently to act in favor of them.

“Ruby is a stone of life force, courage and passion. It stimulates the root chakra, providing an infusion of vitality which can make one feel rejuvenated and enthusiastic for life. It reminds one that living with zest and intensity is more satisfying than ‘playing it safe.’ Ruby nourishes the body and one’s physical energies, without which one’s emotional and spiritual life can come to a standstill.

“When Ruby and Zoisite are combined in a single stone, the root, heart and third-eye chakras are strongly stimulated and harmonized. This creates the potential for a truly magical manifestation of one’s inner and outer development. Zoisite with Ruby energizes the body and creates a sense of well-being. It increases the intensity of the heart’s yearning and facilitates the dramatic opening of the heart chakra, which has the capacity to change one’s whole experience to one of rapturous engagement with the world. This stone can bring about increased intuitive abilities, whereby one simply ‘knows’ things without having to work them through logically. All these awakenings blend together into one feeling—it is as if one had been living as a sort of echo of one’s true, full self, but now that fullness has finally arrived.

“Zoisite with Ruby works, on lower levels of intensity, to harmonize one’s relationships with others, increasing empathy and compassion. It supports the body in realizing its optimal state of health and aids in the vibrational treatment of such ailments as depression, chronic fatigue syndrome, fainting spells, sluggish thyroid and exhaustion of the adrenals. It can assist one in becoming aware of suppressed grief and releasing it through allowing the grief to be expressed. Zoisite with Ruby increases the potency of one’s energy field, strengthening the etheric body and cleansing the astral body of negative attachments. It is excellent for relieving boredom and involving oneself with other people in friendship and service.

“Zoisite with Ruby harmonizes with Tanzanite, Apophyllite and all forms of Sapphire [such as those mentioned below]. When combined with Tugtupite, its activation of the heart chakra can be astounding.”

African Sapphire Crystals (CLICK HERE)

Good Sapphire crystals are always hard to find, and they are usually quite expensive. A recent discovery in Africa yielded the most well-formed and largest Sapphires we have seen for some time. They display an unusual yellow-green color and are well formed with glossy sides.

Robert Simmons writes: “These new African Sapphire Crystals are as beautiful as they are powerful. They combine both the color and energies of Yellow Sapphire and Green Sapphire in a most unique way.

“Yellow Sapphire has long been known as a stone of prosperity. In India, merchants wear fine Yellow Sapphire gems to enhance their success. In the West, metaphysical practitioners use Yellow Sapphire to assist in bringing not only financial abundance, but also in manifesting one’s visions. Yellow Sapphires provide the ideal vibration of the third chakra, seat of the will. With them, one can focus one’s intention for the achievement of almost any aim. The power of one’s unbending intent is not fully recognized by most people, often because their wills are unfocused and little manifests through them. Many people have weak third chakras. Part of this comes from not being taught how and why to focus intention. With the help of Yellow Sapphire, those who clearly sustain their visions long enough will discover that their own thoughts can indeed come into being. This sustaining of one’s vision is sometimes called faith, but one might as readily describe it as will, the awakened third chakra.

“Green Sapphire is about strength of heart. It empowers the heart’s voice, and if lends the heart courage to speak clearly the truth it knows. It enhances the heart’s will and increases one’s sense of purpose. It stimulates a clear compassion, untroubled by doubt and unclouded by pity. It is a helpful stone for those with heart ailments, because it encourages rebuilding of the heart’s vitality.

“In these African Sapphire crystals, the best qualities of Green Sapphire and Yellow Sapphire come together. These are stones of compassion, strength, will power and abundance. They stimulate prosperity and they teach one how to use wealth for the good of all. They facilitate manifestation of one’s visions, as tempered by the heart’s wisdom. They can be used to increase vitality, aid digestion and empower the inner Self.

“The African Sapphire Crystals can be combined with Moldavite to increase one’s power to see and follow the path of one’s highest destiny.”

Crystal Mary Statue (SOLD)

Our friend and crystal sculptor Leandro Pedras, who is renowned for his crystal skull carvings, recently produced an amazing carving of the holy Mother Mary from a single Cathedral Smokey Quartz crystal. The back of the statue still displays some of the natural crystal faces, and there is a large and vivid inner rainbow exactly at Mary’s heart. The artistry of this work is only outshined by the beauty of Her presence. When we took this statue to a workshop on the divine Mary Magdalene, it was used as an altar piece and it filled the room with a quiet sweetness.

Robert Simmons writes, “This statue embodies the presence of Mary in and with the Earth. It is an important embodiment, because the Divine Feminine, of which Mary is a powerful aspect, must be seen and felt as being of the Earth rather than somewhere out in Heaven. Our Heaven is right here, if we will open our eyes and make it so. She is here with us, in the very stones of the Earth. Leandro’s work has done much to reveal Her. The rainbow in the heart of this Mary statue presages the rainbow of inner Light which is awakening in many hearts around the world. Whoever claims this Mary will touch all who behold Her with the felt experience of She who is Earth.”

Obsidian Energy Tools (CLICK HERE)

One of our suppliers in Mexico has just started making some very special pieces from his country’s native Black Obsidian—scrying discs and aura-cleansing wands. The scrying discs are round and flay, about 3.5 inches in diameter and about one half inch thick. The aura-cleansing wands are double-terminated and are about six inches long. Both of them are potent tools for some special kinds of spiritual work.

Robert Simmons writes: “Obsidian has long been used in the magical practice of scrying—a kind of divination in which one meditates while looking into a shiny black surface, awaiting spiritual visions. For this purpose, Black Obsidian is highly preferable to glass or any other material, because its energies enhance meditation, provide spiritual protection from negative forces and open portals of vision into other realms. In a scrying meditation one puts out the intention of what one wishes to experience, ranging from receiving psychic information about oneself or a client, to communicating with deceased loved ones, to experiencing prophetic visions of events to come. As one meditates, one gazes into the obsidian ‘mirror’ with diffuse vision, preferably in a somewhat darkened room. The low sensory input allows subtler energy forms to impress themselves onto one’s perceptions. This sort of tool can powerfully enhance one’s meditative experiences in these areas, and the protection provided by the Obsidian itself is helpful in reassuring oneself that the practice is safe, and in making it so.

“The new Black Obsidian aura-cleansing wands are simply excellent tools for all sorts of energy work. One can use them before or during meditation to clear one’s field of impurities of negative attachments. One can place them at the root chakra during stone body layouts to provide grounding. They are ideal tools for sweeping through the auric field of clients or friends to clear the energies and dispel any negative patterns. These wands can be used to cleanse other stones and to work magick at a distance to clear the fields of those whom one may be trying to help.

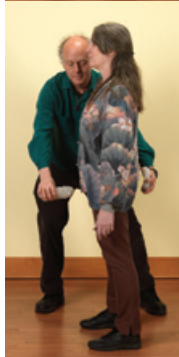

“Placing the discs or the wands on the body can dissolve impurities and dysfunctional patterns in the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix. The same is true for placing these tools around one’s home or healing environment. These lovely Black Obsidian tools provide purification and protection on multiple levels.”

We first encountered Anandalite more than a year ago, and we were astonished by the experiences it engendered in ourselves and others. It has the capacity to awaken kundalini energies in a way that is both powerful and safe. The safe and balanced activation of kundalini in large numbers of people is something we view as an essential element of the world-awakening into which we are moving, at an ever-quickening pace. Gopi Krishna, the most accomplished and well-known kundalini adept of our time, has called kundalini the “energy of genius” in humanity and states that kundalini awakening is central to the evolution of human consciousness. Kundalini awakening can precipitate ecstatic states of consciousness, and can trigger inner openings into divine awareness. Synchronistically, at the time when widespread kundalini awakening is most needed, the stone that can catalyze such awakening has appeared. Since we introduced it in 2010, Anandalite has been experienced by hundreds of people in our showrooms, and in Robert Simmons’ recent Stones of the New Consciousness Intensive. In observing the experiences they reported, we have discerned certain patterns that confirm the connection of Anandalite to kundalini.

For purposes of demonstrating the currents of Anandalite to friends and customers, we often ask the person to stand in profile while one of us uses two Anandalite stones, one in front and one in back, to bring the latent kundalini energies up the spinal column. (Kundalini has been metaphorically described as a “serpent” curled asleep at the base of the spine. When kundalini awakening begins, the serpent of energy moves up the spine, activating all the chakras and ultimately opening the “thousand petaled lotus” at the crown.) Most people we worked with reported a rising energy beginning at the root chakra as warmth, intensifying as it rises. At the heart, the warmth frequently changes to emotional energy, which is most frequently experienced as joy. At the third eye and crown, the energy often transforms into white Light or into an inner rainbow display of multicolored Light. Although not everyone begins by experiencing all of this, most people have a strong sense of the rising energy. Most interestingly, a large number of them involuntarily sway in an undulating motion as the stones move up in front and in back of the spine. This is an enactment of the kundalini “serpent” rising from the base chakra, and the undulations that involuntarily occur show why the energy is called the “serpent fire.” When this practice was done by 150 people at the Stones of the New Consciousness Intensive, there were scores of people swaying like this, all over the room, and the room itself was filled with powerful currents. It is our feeling that we have just begun to tap into the potentials of working with Anandalite.

As a comparison, we quote here, from the book Kundalini Rising, the story of Bonnie Greenwald Phd, who experienced a spontaneous kundalini awakening: “I had gone to class one day after having had an energy session with Gay. While sitting in the somewhat dull classroom, ripples of pleasurable energy began rolling up my spine to the top of my head. Increasing in frequency and intensity, they became stronger and stronger until I soon felt intoxicated with bliss...This experience initiated weeks of emotional and psychological shifts, through which I felt intensely drawn to meditate, found expansiveness in silence, and from time to time felt waves of spontaneous ecstasy. Self-consciousness fell away, my heart felt wide open and loving, and I experienced an inner happiness I had never known before...Gradually the intensity subsided, but the energy events continued on a quieter level. It was always internal and felt like a sweet humming, an easy shift of consciousness that produced subtle blissful feelings.”

The above set experiences echoes everything reported by people working with the energies of Anandalite, and convinced us that the hypothesis that Anandalite can activate kundalini is correct. The degree of activation depends on many factors having to do with the individual, but the way the energy works seems clear. In the book on kundalini, one of the chief issues addressed was the unpredictability of kundalini awakening and the need to find dependable pathways into the experience. We believe that Anandalite (which synchronistically comes from India, where kundalini has been known and cultivated for millennia) may provide an essential key to this awakening.

Ways of Working with Anandalite

At the beginning, we only worked with Anandalite in simple ways, such as carrying the stone, meditating with it or wearing it in jewelry. These basic practices are good for opening the door, but because of Anandalite’s unique capacities to awaken the evolutionary energies of kundalini, we wanted to try more powerful methods. The practice described above is one of the steps we made, and it works very well. It can be further enhanced if the person receiving the activation is also holding an Anandalite in each hand. (By the way, it should be noted that in most cases the person giving the activation felt almost as much as the person receiving it!)

Anandalite Activation Pair: To stimulate the chakra column and begin the activation process, we use a pair of Anandalites—one in front and one in back, as shown in the photos. Although one can use any two pieces of Anandalite, we have found it most effective to use one elongated stalactite-shaped piece and one plate-shaped piece. Usually we use the stalactite in front of the subject and the plate in back. Something about this combination seems to accommodate itself best to the energy field. We have found that all sizes work, but that larger pieces generally emanate a more powerful flow.

Anandalite Chakra Sets: (See picture below) One way to enhance the effects is to set up a body layout with a piece of Anandalite at each chakra. This helps draw the kundalini energy up, activating each chakra point, and the presence of the stone helps stabilize each chakra at a higher vibrational level. We like to use one stone for each of the seven physical chakras, with an additional stone at the Soul Star chakra (about six to nine inches above the head) and another at the Earth Star chakra (about six to nine inches below the feet). Thus, our full chakra sets consist of nine Anandalites.

Anandalite Body-Field Grids: (See picture above) We use these to create a field of energy around the reclining body, when healing or ascension work is being done. For this, we use a set of six larger Anandalites. Our most powerful application for stimulating the body and energy field of an individual is to combine the chakra set with the body grid set. In this configuration, one is lying done inside an oval grid made from the six larger Anandalites, and the nine smaller Anandalites are placed at each of the chakra points. Meditating in the energy environment made by this pattern of powerful stones is an amazing experience, one that can potentially initiate one into the path of kundalini-awakened evolution. (Note: This grid/layout can be further enhanced by adding Tibetan Tektite at the crown and root chakras, or at all of the chakras. Adding Azeztulites will bring in the Nameless Light energy to activate spiritual Light on the cellular level.)

Anandalite Environments: We have gone even further with our environmental use of Anandalites. In addition to the grids and body layouts, we find that placing Anandalites around one’s home or work environment can raise the energy levels wherever one happens to be, helping one learn to function at all times at a new higher vibrational level. For those interested in Anandalites for the environment, or in gridding one’s whole house or land, we recommend purchasing Anandalite by the flat. (See next page)

Our Commitment to Anandalite: We became so convinced that Anandalite is one of the premier stones for the evolutionary quickening and awakening of humanity that we sought out the source of the stones in India and purchased as much as we could acquire—an amount of over three tons! We were primarily interested in the energies of Anandalite, aside from its value as a gemstone, so we made our highest priority to get a large quantity of the stones at a reasonable price. Readers will see that many prices on our Anandalite pages are much lower than in previous catalogs. Originally we purchased only the rare and colorful (and more expensive) Rainbow Anandalite, which we still offer. But now our focus is on bringing these stones to as many people as possible, so we are offering these powerful stones at a fraction of their original cost.

Anandalite by the Flat: (See Page 165) For those who want a significant quantity of Anandalite at the lowest possible price, we recommend buying Anandalite by the flat. The flats are shallow cardboard boxes/trays that hold from seven to twelve pounds of assorted size Anandalites. Shapes, colors and sizes vary greatly, but the energies are in every piece!

As a final note, we print here Robert Simmons' initial reactions to Anandalite: "In my own process of working with Anandalite, I recorded these observations:

Anandalite is among the most powerful stones for Light Body activation and awakening the dormant potentials of both one's physical body and one's consciousness. It profoundly stimulates the central nervous system, all along the spinal column from the root chakra up to the crown. Its currents wash through the whole body, like a tsunami of intense, pleasurable, subtle electricity. Sometimes it focuses in the lower chakras as a warmth, which can increase in magnitude until one actually sweats from the heat. (I also observed this among some volunteers at our shows and Intensives).

"As one invites the currents to rise, both through movement of the stones and through inner intention, one can feel the flood of vibration and warmth entering each chakra. This rising tide is greeted with delight by the body, both in the areas of the chakras, and throughout the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix. As the currents enter the higher chakras, where there is more refined consciousness, the stimulation becomes less physical and more spiritual. At the heart, the heat turns to an upwelling of love and joy, and a rush of imagery (often of colored lights, though sometimes of beautiful scenes, or of people one loves) appears in rapid succession. It feels as if the heart is offering its joy upward to the brain.

"At the throat, there is at first a feeling of fullness, like a 'lump in the throat,' which clears as more of the vibration enters. My sense is that the stone currents are cleansing this area of blockages, and this is confirmed by the subsequent feeling of well being in that area.

"In the head, I experienced both the third eye and crown chakras opening at once, and the entire interior of the skull was filled with intense buzzing vibratory currents. They seemed to 'swim' inside my head! It was as if the entire brain was one huge chakra. The currents continued upward, pouring out the top of the head like a fountain. I could feel the whole line of chakras and the head pulsating with the same undulating current. I can see now why kundalini is called the 'serpent fire!' The emotional tone evoked by these stones is one of spiritual pleasure and the thrill of self-awakening. In one sense Anandalite makes one feel like a musical instrument that is being tuned and played by invisible hands, and there is the satisfaction of self-recognition, as if to say: 'Now! This is what I really am!'

"Many stones, especially Satyaloka Azeztulite and the original white Azeztulite, work in ways that are somewhat similar to Anandalite, though they do not so specifically engender the symptoms of blissful kundalini awakening. I feel that all forms of Azeztulite can act as powerful allies to combine with Anandalite. Phenacite, Herderite, Natrolite and the other stones of vibrational Ascension will enhance the effects of Anandalite. If one wishes to increase the stimulation of the chakra column, I suggest combining Anandalite with Tibetan Tektite."

Gemstone Massage Tools

We were excited to acquire these new Gemstone Massage Tools from a supplier in Madagascar. These handcrafted shapes are designed to actually be used in massage work, and they fit comfortably in the hand. They are also very effective in applying both pressure and energy to the body, without causing accidental discomfort to the massage worker or the client. They come in a variety of seven different stones, each with its own characteristic energies and spiritual qualities. The types of stones available in these special tools are Labradorite, Carnelian, Amethyst, Clear Quartz, Rose Quartz, Jasper and Agnitite. With a whole set of seven, one has a complete energetic tool kit for combine stone energies with bodywork!

Royal Sahara Jasper™

Royal Sahara Jasper is a newly discovered gemstone found in the deserts of North Africa. It occurs in rounded nodules which are dark brown on their outer surfaces, and which contain vivid interior patterns of tan, black and brown. Royal Sahara Jasper is a microcrystalline variety of Quartz, a silicon dioxide mineral with a hardness of 6.5 to 7. When we saw the dramatic patterns and felt the energies of these new stones, we were eager to bring them into our catalog.

Robert Simmons writes: "The energies of Royal Sahara Jasper are stabilizing to the chakras, tending to bring the whole system into balance. They strengthen the lower three chakras, enhancing one's vitality, creative fertility and will. They also resonate in a lovely way with the heart, engendering a feeling of gentle, loving energy there. The heart's resonance with Royal Sahara Jasper feels like a soft caress. At the throat, Royal Sahara Jasper activates one's capacity to courageously speak (or write) the truth of one's heart.

"These stones also (and rather surprisingly for a Jasper) vibrate strongly at the third eye. When worked with in meditation, Royal Sahara Jasper can engender perceptions of spiritual shifts and changes coming in the future. This is one of the stones of the "New Jerusalem," an esoteric term for the Earth in its soon-to-be transformed state, in which the spiritual and material worlds are in full conjunction. Meditation with Royal Sahara Jasper can facilitate visions in which one can glimpse the potentials of what is to come as we approach that great conjunction.

"At the crown chakra, Royal Sahara Jasper can help to awaken one's inner link to the Divine, opening one to receive the awareness of "I Am That I Am." This signifies the self's attunement to one's spiritual origins.

"If one places one piece of Royal Sahara Jasper below the base chakra and another at the crown, the two stones can draw the energies of the entire chakra column into full connection. This is a very valuable attribute, and one can benefit greatly from daily use of the stones at the beginning of a meditation session.

"In spiritual healing, Royal Sahara Jasper offers to help the digestive system find its proper balance, and to lend vitality to the liver and spleen. In self-development, it encourages persistence and self-discipline."

Another relatively rare and highly popular stone for which we have developed an excellent new supply is Cacoxenite. A friend of ours recently purchased a large stock of old Brazilian material which had been in storage for many years. One of the treasures they found in the barrels was a batch of fine raw Cacoxenite crystal pieces. The Cacoxenite was combined with Amethyst, which is our favorite kind, and the pieces are an ideal size—about 1.5 to 2 inches long. This is the first time we have been able to offer raw Cacoxenite in Amethyst pieces.

Robert Simmons writes: “Cacoxenite, especially the specimens found within Amethysts, are stones with the power to assist in one’s spiritual evolution and in raising the vibration of one’s physical self. The reprogramming of the cells to continually renew themselves and resist the aging process, as well as the activation of the ‘new’ strands of the genetic spiral, are both applications for which Cacoxenite is well suited. These processes may be initiated consciously through meditation and dream work, but they can also happen quite unconsciously through simply wearing or carrying the Cacoxenite stone.

“Allied with Phenacite, Danburite, Azeztulite, Scolecite, Natrolite or Herderite, or a combination of these stones, Cacoxenite can powerfully activate the third-eye and crown chakras, for inner visionary experience and for interdimensional communication and connection to Spirit. Moldavite and Cacoxenite make the strongest pair for raising cellular vibrations and accelerating one’s evolutionary path. In body layouts and daily exposure from wearing, carrying or meditating with the stone, Cacoxenite offers the attraction and grounding of the highest spiritual Light. If one wishes to utilize Cacoxenite as an adjunct to healing and/or regenerating the body, Sugilite and Seraphinite will aid in this process.

Naisha Ahsian tells us: “By opening the connection to Spirit and then aligning one’s will with the Divine plan, Cacoxenite enables one to cleanse the energy systems of any negative attachments preventing one from moving forward on one’s path. Emotional ‘cords’ linking one to outmoded relationships can be dissolved in the Light of Spirit, which is grounded on the Earth plane by Cacoxenite. Alternately, if one is seeking a strong emotional connection with another person, Cacoxenite will strengthen those bonds, if they are aligned with the energy of the Divine.

“Placing Cacoxenite on the third eye and solar plexus, one can initiate an energy flow of promoting the perception and understanding of emotional issues in one’s life. These can then be integrated and healed using the soothing violet light emanated by Cacoxenite can enable one to connect more easily with one’s guides or guardian spirits. When used in meditation, it facilitates connection with higher intelligences and can be used by channelers to enhance conscious connection and alignment with higher beings.”

Astaraline™ Update \(CLICK HERE\)

The 2011 Tucson Gem and Mineral Show last February was the public debut of our new stone Astaraline, which we introduced in Newsletter #43. It was very well received, and was one of the hits of the show for us. People who encountered it for the first time were greatly impressed by the soft and loving currents they received while holding the stone. Many agreed that Astaraline creates a protective field around one’s subtle body, which serves as a kind of “womb” or cocoon for the incubation and formation of the Body of Light. They also felt, as we do, that Astaraline helps nourish and heal the emotional body, an essential process in Light Body awakening. These interactions and many others confirmed our intuition that Astaraline has come forward at the ideal time to aid us in the evolutionary transformation toward which we have been working for our whole lives, and toward which humanity has been moving for millennia.

Robert Simmons writes of Astaraline: “Astaraline is a very active stone, and at the same time a deeply gentle and loving one. It resonates throughout the body, readily entering through the third eye and/or the heart chakra, and making itself felt all the way to the hands and feet, and all points in between! It brings pleasant but powerful vibratory sensations into the abdomen and chest, as well as the head and throat. It has an immediate capacity for clearing the throat chakra. The currents of Astaraline also move downward from the head into the body. The cleared throat is assisted by Astaraline in giving expression to the emerging wisdom of the bodily or cellular consciousness.

“Astaraline is an important aid for awakening the cellular consciousness. This is the awareness of the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix, which I discussed in Stones of the New Consciousness. It is an entirely new mind, which is congruent with the true Self. Though we think often of the true Self as resident in the heart, the sense I am receiving through working with Astaraline is that the heart is the overlapping center where the true Self and our everyday identity can meet and join with one another. The true Self (also called the Higher Self or the second ‘I’) is present in every cell of the body (perhaps in every atom), and it is this Self that we join in the partnered conscious experienced through alchemical transformation, samadhi, or what is now called Ascension. The processes of Ascension and Light Body awakening are happening all over the world, and to the Earth herself. Astaraline declares itself to be a newly awakened mineral, emerging at this time to play its role in the great spiritual transformation we are all entering.

“As a stone of cellular consciousness, Astaraline can help those involved in spiritual self-healing to bring harmony and functional alignment to all of the bodily organs and systems. Its nourishing, coherent emanations encourage the cells to find the new path to existing in a state of grace, leaving behind the old habits of deterioration and degeneration. Astaraline amplifies the power of the Divine Blueprint for the Body of Light, not as a separate vehicle for the ascension of the individual, but as the transformation of the gross body into one of radiant spiritual Light. This means awakening the cellular mind and helping the cellular awareness to gradually gestate until it is strong enough to remain awake and generate a new physical state. It is as if the stones’ currents form a cocoon of Light within which we can go through the metamorphosis into a new luminous Self.

“My understanding is that Astaraline is energetically coded to activate a kind of vibrational ‘womb’ or field of protection within which the nascent Light Body can develop. High vibrational energies, like those of Agnitite, Azeztulite (and the Supramental Force itself), are still able to enter one’s field, but under the influence of Astaraline any negative or impure currents of the lower frequencies are screened out. As we begin to enter the next levels of the process of vibrational Ascension, such ‘cocooning’ can be necessary, so that we will be less inclined to fall into our habitual resonance with old dysfunctional patterns of thought, behavior and bodily decay. The many levels of self must come into full alignment in the Ascension process, and it is important that they be able to free themselves from destructive ‘ruts.’ Astaraline can act to keep one’s field clear of psychic and energetic debris, while encouraging the flow of beneficial currents. Some of the most significant of these Ascension currents are available through the Azeztulites, as well as Agnitite, Shantilite, Anandalite, Phenacite, Herderite, Celestite, Danburite, Seraphinite and other high vibration stones linked with the angelic realms. Aegirine and Guardian Stone will aid greatly in the protective ‘cocooning’ process.

“The emergence of Astaraline is synchronous with the stepping-up of the Ascension process, and we are fortunate to have this powerful Awakened Stone here to help us.”

Satyaloka Clear Azeztulite™ Crystals \(CLICK HERE\)

For years Satyaloka Azeztulite from South India has been one of our most treasured high-vibration stones. It stimulates the crown and Soul Star chakras, filling them with pure White Light. It emanates what is probably the highest vibration of all the Azeztulites, (although each type has its own special qualities). Since we first encountered the stones through a devotee from the ashram near the stones’ location, we have only known it to occur in chunks or river-tumbled pieces, with the exception of a small number of very tiny crystals. A mineral explorer friend in India recently returned with a small cache of larger Satyaloka Azeztulite crystals. These grew in very interesting, finely detailed shapes, and are from one to three inches long, and they are exceptionally powerful.

Robert Simmons writes: “These new Satyaloka Azeztulites are wonderful Light tools! They powerfully stimulate the third eye, crown and Soul Star chakras, emanating a beam of intense current through their terminations. The growth of these Satyaloka points lends them a focus and intensity that is quite remarkable. These are stones of a highly enlightened energy, and they invite us to work with them and awaken to the ecstatic state of full awareness.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite opens the crown chakra with a tremendous flow of energy. When I worked with this stone, I felt it pouring downward through the crown as soon as I held it in my hands. The crown chakra opened and a pulsing energy cascade thrust down again and again through the top of my head all the way to my heart. As it extended further, it seemed to be exploring or slowly penetrating the column of my chakras below the heart, with each pulse reaching a little deeper.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite placed upon the heart in a pouch produced a deep sense of reverence, an appreciation of the presence of the Holy in the heart. It became difficult to speak or form words as I allowed this vibration of the Holy to move into my heart center. This stone carries deep currents of what I would term the Holy Silence. It has a direct resonance with the vastness of consciousness at the site of Origin. It opens a stream via which one may venture toward the Source. It is a rather magnetic feeling, as the Source draws one toward itself. As one gets closer and closer to it, words are left behind, and as one approaches nearer, one is conscious only of the swirling White Light that whirls around the center void in a spiraling cloud.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite is tremendously powerful. Throughout the entire mineral kingdom I know no currents more intense than these. It organizes and re-centers brain activity. It brings consciousness to a deepening sense of quiet and gives a heightened sensitivity to subtle energies and streams of consciousness. It asks a great deal of the heart, for it pulls Light through the heart and into the rest of the body. It is not a difficult or painful thing at all; it is a lovely feeling. It is simply powerful.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite is resonant with the energies described in India’s mystical traditions as sat-chit-ananda. Sat means truth, chit is consciousness and ananda is bliss, so this sat-chit-ananda is the quality of truth, consciousness and bliss as one whole pattern. Satyaloka Azeztulite can infuse the Liquid Crystal Body Matrix with the intense high frequencies of sat-chit-ananda. There is, I can only say, a tremendous Light in these stones.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite is a stone of powerful spiritual dedication. It can guide in purification of one’s energy bodies, of one’s intention, will, even of one’s love activities and energies. It encourages one-pointed focus of consciousness through the will in the third chakra. This is an extremely powerful capacity, because one-pointed focus through the will is the most powerful inner “posture” for specific co-creating activity and manifestation of what one envisions.

“Satyaloka Azeztulite can be used to travel through the realms of Light to many higher planes of reality. It can be ridden all the way to the archetypal first emanations from Source. It is a powerful stone for conducting one on conscious journeys into the spiritual worlds via the geometries of Light. It enables one to more readily place the Light geometries along and within the body/temple. Satyaloka Azeztulite encourages us to envision ourselves and our world as temples, as holy places. Its adherence to the purpose of Light in the world is absolute, and it engenders absolute devotion to Spirit in the individual.

“The new Satyaloka Azeztulite points will be exceedingly powerful when used in conjunction with Anandalite. Both of these holy stones from India carry much Light, and while Satyaloka Azeztulite awakens the mind to higher awareness, one could say that Anandalite stimulates the consciousness of the body to the magical awakening of kundalini.”

Aegirine (CLICK HERE)

We were most fortunate to acquire more fine Aegirine crystals from South Africa. We were even lucky enough to get a pair of large Aegirine clusters and several individual crystals over four inches long! Aegirine is in high demand for clearing the body of negative vibrations and protecting one from negative influences in the environment. It is one of the premier stones for such applications, and it can also provide instantaneous grounding, without a loss of energy.

Robert Simmons writes: “Aegirine is excellent for removing negative or stuck energies from all levels of the subtle bodies. It provides a high degree of spiritual protection from negative energies or entities. There are few stones as effective as Aegirine for breaking the attachment of negative entities to one’s etheric body. Such attachments are not normal for energetically healthy and balanced individuals, but anyone can become vulnerable in moments of strong fear or anger. Negative attachments can also take root if one makes holes in the aura’s protective field through abuse of alcohol or drugs, or smoking cigarettes. Carrying or wearing Aegirine can be an effective stop-gap measure for forcing the release of these vampiric energies, and working with Aegirine in body layouts or in conjunction with other subtle energy healing modalities can, in time, regenerate the damaged protective auric shield.

“Aegirine presents itself as a stone deeply dedicated to service in healing and purification. It has offered itself in a sacrificial act of willingness to go deep and cleanse all of the worst and most difficult places within us. While many stones resonate best in the heart and upper chakras, Aegirine is willing to enter into the lowest chakras. When I held the Aegirine near my base chakra, I felt a steady pull toward the crystal of every sort of impurity in the places within my energy bodies that corresponded to physical disharmonies in the corporeal body. This stone carries a vibrational charge that is so deeply opposite the negative charges of our disharmonies that they are drawn to Aegirine as inexorably as to a magnet. One can imagine this by visualizing the way something charged with static electricity can pick up bits of paper that will cling to it. In a similar gesture, Aegirine attracts everything in us that is impure. This is indeed a great service to the evolutionary potential of the human being, for in our daily lives in the world there are innumerable possibilities for attaching or being attached to by negative complexes. We are not consciously aware, in most cases, of these attachments, Aegirine, if we invite it to enter our field, will cleanse us energetically, perhaps more deeply than we have ever been cleansed. Aegirine is unafraid of what we may find repugnant and what we therefore may not wish to regard in ourselves. Aegirine is like the diligent worker who does what is needed whether it is agreeable or disagreeable.

“Aegirine has a resonance with the being sometimes known as the Black Madonna, and with a being known as Kali. It is a stone of the Dark Mother energy and a resonant ally of the stone Master Shamanite. Both of these stones work from and within the Underworld or the unconscious realms for the evolutionary benefit and healing of the human being. Aegirine is a strong ally and willing helper, offering service by taking upon itself the impurities and disharmonies we carry. Because of its affinity for the darkness coupled with its dedication to healing, this stone, as deeply as any other, serves the Light—for the well-being of us all.”

Madagascar Spectrolite (CLICK HERE)

Spectrolite is defined as a variety of Labradorite exhibiting intense labradorescence, or shimmering play of color. Originally, this fine Labradorite was discovered in Finland, but it has since been found in Madagascar and some other countries. A friend of ours who mines in Madagascar recently came upon some super-fine Labradorite with enough play of color to qualify as Spectrolite. Energetically, the properties of Spectrolite are the same as those of Labradorite, but highly intensified. In addition to their powerful energies, these Spectrolites are simply the most beautiful Labradorites we have ever had!

Robert Simmons writes: “Labradorite is the gemstone of magic, and it awakens in those who carry or wear it the awareness of one’s innate magical powers. The term ‘magic’ refers to the mental and intuitive abilities which include but are not limited to clairvoyance, telepathy, astral travel, prophecy, psychic reading, access to Akashic records, past-life recall, communication with higher guides and spirits, and coincidence control. ‘Coincidence control’ is the practice of increasing the observed degree of synchronicity and serendipity in one’s life. Labradorite is a stone ideally suited to facilitating the enhancement of these abilities. It is an interdimensional stone, emanating an energy which helps one to consciously pierce the veil between our waking world and the many domains and planes of inner awareness. It is a gemstone of adventure, for it offers one the chance to embark upon a multitude of voyages of self-discovery. It is said that a tyrant wants power over others, and a true magician desires power only over himself or herself. In wearing or working with Labradorite, one disconnects from any tendencies to attempt to control others, while one bonds deeply with the knowledge that self-mastery is the path of true fulfillment.

“Wearing Labradorite as a pendant can center one in constant awareness of the multiple layers of reality. In rings, Labradorite can enhance the sending and receiving of the impulses of all varieties of magic. In earrings it can especially enhance one’s ‘hearing’ the messages of one’s spirit guides. Placed on the third eye in meditation, Labradorite can facilitate visionary experiences of the future, the past, and the many inner domains of time and timelessness.

“Labradorite with the intensity of color to be called Spectrolite is no doubt the most magical of all. It is attuned to the Rainbow Body of Light, the highest vibrational form of the awakened human being. Working with Spectrolite takes the magical capacities of the practitioner into a higher octave, and can lead to the activation of latent capacities that appear miraculous from our present perspective. Sages who have achieved the Rainbow Body are said to live eternally, and to be able to appear either in bodily form or as a halo of rainbow light. The vivid colors of Spectrolite, and its inherent energies, can initiate the first steps on this astonishing path.”

Protector Quartz (CLICK HERE)

The crystals we call Protector Quartz are rare stones from Brazil. They are shaped similarly to other Quartz crystals, but they are pigmented with deep red, and often have blackish-silvery Hematite deposits on them. The two pages shown in this catalog are our entire collection.

Robert Simmons writes: “Protector Quartz provides powerful shielding currents that anchor one’s energy field into the body and the Earth. At the same time, Protector Quartz helps to seal the auric field so that invasive negative energies are expelled and kept from re-entering. These stones act as ‘bodyguards’ for the etheric body, helping to keep one from inadvertently opening oneself to destructive or parasitic forces. Those who work in negative or dangerous environments may find a powerful ally in Protector Quartz.

“When I meditated with these stones, a being appeared as the symbolic form of the stones’ vibrational qualities. It was a large, strong-looking male figure with a huge chest and big muscles—the very image of a bodyguard! Its posture and gestures indicated that the stone would guard and protect its keeper, and that it was strong enough to do so! Holding the stones, one feels a sense of power in the body, as if the Protector had become a part of oneself.

“Protector Quartz is recommended for anyone who tends to be too psychically open, and those who tend not to put up their own psychic protection. If one is ungrounded, it can be an instant help. Those who have experienced damage to the auric field can ‘re-seal’ it with the help of Protector Quartz—which has a synergetic resonance with Aegirine, Guardian Stone and Black Andradite Garnet.”

Madagascar Celestite Clusters

We had a great opportunity on our buying trip to acquire a new stock of Madagascar Celestite Clusters. We now have sizes from an inch or two to large clusters weighing over ten pounds. The sweet, angelic currents of Celestite are among the best for soothing the emotional body and entering a state of trust and forgiveness.

Robert Simmons writes: “Celestite offers a gentle, uplifting energy which can raise and expand one’s awareness into the higher realms. It is one of the most effective stones for accessing the angelic realm and can facilitate communication between oneself and one’s guardian angels or angelic guides. It stimulates the third-eye and crown chakras and the etheric chakras above the head. It is a soft stone both physically and energetically. As it elevates one’s awareness, Celestite makes one feel as if one is floating on a cloud rather than zooming in a rocket.

Madagascar’s Blue-gray Celestite comes primarily in clusters, and it is ideal for placement in one’s bedroom, healing room or meditation space, as an environmental cleanser and source of soft positive energies. Its vibrations radiate in all directions, making it wonderful to have around. When held to the third eye, Celestites can offer an exquisite vibration of pleasure and inner joy. They are both gentle and strong, opening the third eye to multiple realms of higher dimensions. In meditation with them, one can move through many inner corridors of Light leading to various spiritual domains. Most easily recognizable are a number of the angelic levels. Celestites seem to be intimately connected with the angels and to facilitate conscious communication with them.

“Another essential quality of Celestite is its awakening of the capacity for profound forgiveness in those who work with it. This is of great aid in healing the emotional body. Beyond that, it can become a way of life in which one is always fore-giving (giving oneself forward into each coming moment). This is an essential aspect of heart-centered living.

“Celestites activate the crown chakra as well as the third eye, sometimes enabling the ‘downloading’ of spiritual information through the opened crown. They also beneficially affect the throat chakra, making it possible to clearly articulate one’s inner wisdom as well as information received from higher sources. As noted above, Celestite also stimulates the heart chakra, opening one to deepened compassion, inner peace and expanded love for oneself and others.

In addition, the powers of mind are enhanced and awakened by Celestite, facilitating clairvoyance, clairaudience and clairsentience. The ability to see ahead in time, as in prophecy, is also strengthened. In addition, the rational mind is nourished by these stones, assisting one in all types of mental disciplines, mathematics, language and abstract thought. Access to inspiration and leaps of intuition are also benefits of Celestite.

2012 Intensive is Postponed

We are announcing here that the 12-12-12 Intensive with Robert Simmons is postponed. When we have asked inwardly about doing the event our most recent guidance is that the event we had planned for that time will not work well. We do not know everything about why this is so, but are sure we must adhere to our guidance. We will keep our website updated on any further announcements and future plans.
